

Michele Gonda

With fourteen years of successful design experience coupled with an unparalleled creative edge, designer Michele Gonda is truly a driving force behind the success of FreeGirl Apparel.

As the designer of the internationally-recognized Faith Couture and Love Couture lines which generated more than $35 million in retail sales for renowned retail establishments including Saks Fifth Avenue, Neiman Marcus and Henri Bendel, Michele's success is credited not only to her excellence in design, but her savvy business sense.

From a design's first sketch to the consumer's hands, Michele is highly-skilled in every aspect of the retail design process. Her experiences include hiring and supervising a design staff of 15 individuals, generating cost sheets, sourcing international fabrics and trims, and consistently meeting design and production deadlines with results that surpass all expectations.

Maintaining critical public relations contacts at top publications including Vogue, WWD, Apparel News, Marie Claire and Glamour, Michele is comfortable working among the very best and most established names in the fashion industry. In addition, Michele has dressed more than 25 celebrities and supermodels including Claudia Schiffer, Teri Hatcher and Lisa Kudrow.

Residing in Beverly Hills, California, Michele continues to develop inspiring designs for FreeGirl Apparel. Michele's education includes degrees from Penn State University and L.A. Trade Tech. For more information about Michele, please contact XXXXXXXXX.
